(From Our Regular Correspondent.) WASHINGTON, January 12,-There is excellent authority for the statement that Representative Carter Glass, of the Sixth District, will announce his candia few days for the Democratic nomination to the governorship, to succeed Mr. Swanson. It is further stated that the announcement of the candidacy of Mr. Glass will not be made until after the inauguration of Governor Swanson. Probably some time this spring formal announcement of Mr. Glass's candidacy, or, at least, some expression from him indicating his unequivocal intention of ful candidate the last time, will run again in 1906, but he has not, so far as known, indicated his purpose to do so.

the office of chief executive of the State, and the probabilities are thought to favor his running.

There was talk of the candidacy of Representative Flood, of the Tenth District, but Mr. Flood has not encouraged gossip, and has always said not a candidate and did not know he would ever be one. At the same he said, it was not possible for to assert with positiveness that he i not aspire to the office four years the course of a few weeks or months, best of authority on which to base a statement would be that of Glass himself. My authority is ex-nt, though it cannot be said to be best,

Mr. Swanson does not know anything of the arrangements being made for the linauguration, only in the most general way. Probably all save one or two of the Virginia representatives will go down from Washington to attend the inaugural ceremonies, leaving here early in the morning and returning the evening of the same day. Both the senators are expected to be present. If the party be large enough, a special train will carry it; otherwise the car will be attached.

Not Be Taken Out.

Not Be Taken Out.

Representative Glass would not discuss for publication to-day the proposition of the Sale bill to take Charlotte and Hall-fax from the Sixth District and put them in the Fifth. "I should be sorry, indeed, to see the people of those countles taken from my district," said Mr. Glass, "but it would not be proper for me to discuss the provisions of a bill pending in the State Legislature. It is not improper, however," he added, "for me to say that my information is that these counties will not be taken out of the Sixth District."

What is claimed to be a door of old Libby prison is on exhibition in a Pennsylvania Avenue saloon, and attracts sightseers and customers. It is the property of George Mountcastle, formerly a saloon man of Richmond, but now in the business at Brightwood, a suburb of Washington. The man behind the bar at the saloon where the door is being exhibited has in his possession a big key, which he says is the property of a man who was in the Thirteenth New York and who escaped from Libby, carrying the key with him. The feelings of the bartender were considerably hurt, when, after he had said the owner would part with the key for three hundred dollars, he was informed that a thriving industry was carried on in Richmond in the manufacture and sale of such roles.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

NORFOLK, VA., January 12.—J. E. Reiter, seaman, is in the hospital aboard the United States Receiving Ship Frank-lin, with a bruised back. He is lucky to be alive, for he was struck by a live torpedo. There has been much practice recently in sending out torpedoes from the reserve station. On Wednesday while Reiter and others were out in a cutter a torpedo changed its course and jumping over the cutter smashed its sides, struck Reiter in the back and then dived to the bottom of the river and stuck its nose harmlessly into the mud. It was pulled out and examined afterward to find that the propelling machinery became entangled where it was in the water and caused the eccentric movements, Meantime Reiter and the broken outter were hurried to the Franklin and both are undergoing repairs.

The escape from the torpedo is regarded as rairaculous.

name Mr. Jones. He assailed Judge Garnett, and said he had left the bench and come to his county to work for his opponent for the Legislature. He characterized those who were supporting the Judge in Gloucester as a mob, and asked the caucus if it would submit to mob rule. Senator Sears arose to reply, but the chair ruled him out of order, having once spoken. He was given unanimous consent, however, and proceeded in a most impassioned manner to defend Judge Garnett, and to absolutely deny the charges made against him.

Mr. Sears read a letter signed by Judge Tallaferro, among others, proposing an open trade with Judge Garnett, by which he was to name the electoral board in Gloucester favorable to the signers in exchange for their support in future elections. This created a profound sensation, and when he read Judge Garnett's biting answer, in which he scorned the offer, there was prolonged cheering.

The Gloucester man replied, but devoted more of his speech to going over local fights in the district.

Mr. Jennings, of Lynchburg, called the body to order at 5 o'clock, and Judge Mann, in a highly pleasing speech, named Hon. John W. Churchman for permanent chairman. Hon. Charles T. Bland was made secretary.

Ninth Circuit, Judge D. A. Grimsley, of Culpoper; Seventeenth Circuit. Judge Thomas W. Harrison, of Winchesten, and Twenty-first Circuit, Judge R. C. Jackson, of Wythe. They were all elected by acolamation.

The "fighting" Thirteenth was declared to be the next circuit in order, and Senator J. Boyd Sears took the floor to name Judge G. Taylor Garnett, of Mathews. Senator Sears made a speech bristling with beauty and eloquence, and when he concluded he was greeted with appliance.

He spoke of the flerce fight of two years ago between the present antagonists, and paid Judge Garnatt a glowing tribute for his ability and fairness on the bench.

"That Mr, Jones has the right to run, I admit." he said: "that he has the reason, I deny. If there be a man in all Virginia who says Judge Garnett has not adorned the place you gave him, I have not heard it. I challenge the caucus to-night to say one word, that I may meet it and defend the man of my choice."

The speaker referred to the support of the almost unanimous bar of the circuit for his candidate, and said that seventy-five per cent. of the lawyers and the poople there were pleading for Judge Garnett's renomination.

Mr. Sears pointed out that the appeal had been made to the people of the Blate successfully last summer along the line that Senator Martin should not be turned.
